

Hello and welcome to a sneak peek into the energies of 2022 for you.

Here's how I'm doing these readings. I've chosen a card from Colette Baron-Reid's "Wisdom of the Oracle" deck specifically for you to act as your signifier. This means that the card represents you and the overall theme of the message to be delivered. Your Guides and I will elaborate on it, using the image and meaning as a jumping off point.

As they often do, the Guides may take us on a tangent or bring up something that you can't immediately see as relevant but try to suspend your judgement for a bit and listen to what they say.

This is not by any means a predictive reading. You always have free will to create your life how you wish. The intention behind this message is to open the door for new ideas, new perspectives, and new possibilities. It is always up to you to take what resonates and work with it. It will do you no good to take that which resonates and sit on it or put it off for 'another time when you're ready'. The energy they speak of is available now for you to do something with NOW.

My role is to receive the message clearly and without attachment. That's pretty basic for any good channel or oracle. If you've worked with me for even 3 seconds, you'll know that beyond being a hella clear channel, my focus is always on helping you ground the energies into the physical world because as I've said many times, without action, nothing changes.

So, listen with your heart to the following message. Allow it to just gently float into your awareness like a feather. Then put it away and go about your daily life. Make a note on your calendar for December 28th to read it again and notice what resonates now. Notice what feels ready to act on. Notice how things may have shifted in your life since you read it at first.

Choose one thing (start small!) to act on as the new year dawns. Dedicate yourself to that one thing for at least a week. See what happens when you move in the new, more expanded energy.

The best is indeed yet to come.

Wishing you the most wonderful year ahead you can imagine.

xo Lisa

Here is the card chosen as your signifier in this reading.

Remember, it signifies YOU and the overall theme of the message the Guides will deliver.

If you have a distinct feeling or judgement about the card or its guidebook meaning, that's fine. It's part of the process.

This is a brief synopsis of the card's meaning from the guidebook:

Key words: time to make a decision; considering the consequences as you prepare to act; owning up to your obligation to make a necessary choice.

The Oracle's Message: Every choice has a consequence. You've arrived at a fork in the road and are being asked to come to a decision. Will you further your dreams by choosing left? Or by choosing right? Will you take the road less traveled or the one well worn by others who have come before you? This is your choice, and yours alone to make. Circumstances and other people will not make it for you. Be present and do not avoid this junction, for it is an important crossroads. Take heart, for no matter which path you choose, you will have a rich and meaningful experience.

Let's see what your Guides and Teachers in Spirit want to share with you about that energy and beyond.

Dear One,

Nothing like putting it right out there, eh? We couldn't have said it better ourselves. Our message here will elaborate on it so you have a better sense of what is meant and more importantly, what to do while you stand at that very crossroad.

It is true that regardless which road you choose, there awaits both challenges and rewards, certainly of different kinds on each path. But both will get you where you wish to go in very different ways, such as taking a side road off a main highway brings you new things to see and experience.

The question for you always comes back to this: what does your soul crave now? The you that has done all this work on herself to open wide and dig deep. What is it that will satisfy that soul right now?

As much as you wish to deny it, you are a rebel at heart. Because you know, from deep inside out, that things can be better. You know you came here to participate in that experience of leading the way. Others take an easier path for it is theirs to make the journey easier both for themselves and others. Wonderful.

That is not your soul's desire in this incarnation. You know this. On your better days, you live this. :)

“Go where there is no path and make a way.”

When you come to the crossroads, we advise you to take the third way, neither left nor right. Choose the dirt road that calls your name. Go where your heart, soul, and knowing take you.

Might we let you in on a little secret?

Choosing your heart over solid, well-trodden terrain is the hardest part of this whole next adventure. The choice to say YES to creating a new pathway for yourself and others requires you to stand strong in what you know. What you've learned. What you've lived. The hardest part will be allowing yourself to fully give yourself to your work. 100% of you is dedicated to being 100% of you.

Yes, read that part again. 100% of you (all of your inner resources and knowledge) will be called forward so that you can be 100% of your Divine self.

This is what you are saying yes to, beloved. Nothing more. Nothing less. As you stand at that crossroads, looking left and right, be willing to choose the path straight ahead that you've been heading toward for a while now. It is your destiny and we know that sounds so dramatic but ... well, here we are.

It is time to be 100% of your Divine self. Consider this to be the moment when a Ph.D. candidate steps up to give his or her thesis. All the years of study have brought them to this doorway to their next place.

As we said, here we are.

You are ready now. Go and make your own way, Rebellious one.

Watching from both close and afar we remain steadfastly,

Your loving Guides and Teachers

From Lisa:

So, uh, no pressure, right? LOL Step on up to the platform, Ph.D. candidate. Your cap and gown await you.

As I was bringing your Guides through, there was such a bubbling of excitement from them. It was like they wanted to point you in the right direction (which they ultimately did) and knew they had to lead you there rather than say "Here it is. GO!"

I also got a sense that there was no right or wrong here. Just an opportunity to bring yourself forward in trust and in faith that you've done what you've needed to do preparing for this and it's smooth sailing from here.

This isn't a 'brace yourself moment' as much as it's a 'now is your time' moment, it felt like. The card spoke to choices and, of course, you can choose whichever you like, but I love that your Guides were pretty clear about which one your soul was seeking.

In rebellious solidarity with you, I wish you so much love and joy and you let everyone see 100% of your Divine Self!

Lisa xo

www.lisamw.com

You know. I just help you remember.